How long it has been in Florida no one seems to know, but people I have talked to tell me they have seen it for the past 40 years or more, and its use for decorative purposes on souvenirs of many varieties has been common in south Florida for many years.

Because they had the impression plant was being cultivated in rida, the Boston authorities were of the opinion we might be of assistance in locating such sources and preventing its production. In the light of information we gleaned, it appears this would be an im-

Hydroponics — the science of growing crops without soil—has been practiced in Florida on a limited scale commercially for a number of years. Tomatoes grown by this method usually command fancy prices. However, field production of vegetables and fruits far exceeds the small volume produced by hydroponic culture.

Fashions in Telephones ... Have Changed, Too

In the eighteen nineties when the new upright telephone was first introduced, the well-dressed woman's skirt swept the ground, and bustles were the rage.

Telephone fashions have changed, too. Today's homes include multi-extension phones, home interphones and the melodic bell chime. Businesses rely on such modern nent as the dial switchboard, the speakerphone and the call director. Tomorrow will bring the phone that turns on the oven while you're out, and the phone that lets you see the person to whom you're talking.

Your telephone will continue to change and improve, but Florida Southern Bell's tradition of sound management, community responsibility and dependable service remain the same. Change and stability are the hallmarks of good business. Your Telephone Company be-lieves in both.
